Nation Warned to Improve It's Civil Defenses

Predict H-Bombs With Punch of 50 Million Tons TNT

Intercontinental Missiles Seen in Less Than Six Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation received an official warning today that it could be attacked with intercontinental ballistic missiles in less than six years.

The warning was coupled with the prediction that both the United States and Russia soon will have H-bombs with the punch of 50 million tons of TNT.

A top-level Civil Defense Committee said development of the ICBM — sometimes described as the ultimate weapon — is expected within "six to 10 years at the most but possibly much sooner." It said the warning period of an attack by the intercontinental missiles would be "not more than 10 to 20 minutes."

The 13-man special committee included its warnings in a report to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, Civil Defense Administrator, and Val Peterson and Defense Mobilization Arthur S. Flemming. They immediately called for broad changes in the nation's civil defense program based on committee recommendations.

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) warned the Russians are working on weapons "even more fantastic" than the ICBM. He declined to elaborate.

Jackson is chairman of the Atomic Energy Applications subcommittee, which receives high-level secret briefings on atomic weapons development.

The Russians hinted only last week they have developed an ICBM. Defense Department officials publicly doubted the hint.

The special committee headed by Gen. Otto L. Nelson, Jr., reviewed atomic weapons progress since the so-called "Project East River Report" for civil defense planning was issued in 1952. The group called for widespread revisions to take into account the transition from the atomic bomb to the multi-megaton H-bomb.

"The time is close at hand," the committee's report said, "when the United States and its potential enemies" will have bombs rated at 50 million tons of TNT destructive power.

The report said there has been considerable improvement in continental air defense. But it warned that gains will be offset by continuing increases in plane performance, both in speed and in bomb-carrying capacity.

Only Surviving Quad Given Fair Chance to Live

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—Doctors today gave the only surviving Hohenwarter quadruplet a fair chance to live despite his tiny size and weak condition.

Norman Charles Hohenwarter Jr., the first of the quads to be born and the heaviest, was the only one still alive today although physicians had first given him all four a good chance of survival.

Carl Conrad, the second quad born to a young Lancaster couple Monday, died Tuesday night. John Philip and Mark Anthony died earlier Tuesday.

Norman Charles, the heaviest at 4 pounds, 1 ounce, was the strongest of the four and had a fair chance to live, doctors said. He has been in an incubator since birth.

The three quads died within 38 hours of their birth to Mrs. Regina Hohenwarter, 26. Her husband, Norman, 26, works as a $65-a-week drug store and postal substitution clerk in Lancaster. The quads came as a surprise to the Hohenwarters who had been expecting twins.

Mrs. Hohenwarter was reported in satisfactory condition today. The quads were born four weeks prematurely.

The Hohenwarters have two other sons, Stephen, 6, and Donald, 3.

Annual Soils, Crops Meeting Held at City Hall

Saline county's annual soils and crops meeting was held at the city hall in Harrisburg Tuesday, starting at 10 a. m. and continuing until almost 3 p. m. P. E. Johnson, professor of agronomy, University of Illinois, was the principal speaker.

Mr. Johnson, who works on experiments being conducted by the University of Illinois at Newton, Brownstown, Olney, Raleigh and other fields showed numerous slides of the work being accomplished.

In discussing soil treatment, the speaker stated that soils should not be treated until tested for deficiencies. Then a complete treatment program should be completed. Soil needs lime, potash, phosphate and organic matter, it was stated.

Grains best suited for this area, the speaker stated, are Knox and Dual wheat, Clark soybeans, Kenbar and Hudson barley and DuBoise winter oats. Hudson barley and Dual wheat are just newly developed seeds and will be available for the first time in southern Illinois.

Wheat may be treated with nitrogen at this time, the speaker stated, but recommended that not more than 20 to 30 pounds to the acre be used.

In closing, Mr. Johnson stressed these points:

1. Test the soil before treatment, then have a complete treatment program.
2. Include clover in rotation of crops.
3. Grow varieties that show the most increase.

Considerable interest was displayed by the large number of Saline county farmers in attendance.

Fire Damages Home On East McHaney

Fire this morning did considerable damage to a house on East McHaney street occupied by Tim Hooker and owned by George White.

Fire Chief L. G. Martin said the fire was caused by a defective flue, that the damage was to the walls around the flue and to the room. The damage will amount to several hundred dollars, he said. The call was received at 10 a. m.

Tongay Seized After Sprint To Freedom

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—Russell Tongay, the "Aquatone" father, sprinted from his guard to brief freedom Tuesday night after feigning helplessness during a four-day train journey from Los Angeles.

The controversial swimming instructor, serving a 10-year manslaughter sentence for the death of his tiny daughter Kathy in a 33-foot exhibition dive, was being returned to Florida after a previous escape.

Authorities said the once-burly ex-Coast Guardsman bolted from his Pullman stateroom bed as the train began moving from the station and outdistanced prison officer Gib Powledge in a five-block foot-race.

"Why, I had no idea in the world the man could even move," Powledge said wryly. "We had to lift him to dress him, and when we got off trains we had to tote him to wheel chairs. He'll go in chains the rest of the way."

Tongay was captured hiding under a residence and placed in a solitary cell in the county jail to await new train connections to-night.

In New Orleans last Nov. 13 Tongay had similarly used hidden strength to elude another prison guard in a race across a parking lot after slipping from a restaurant with a group of patrons while the officer was paying for their meal.

The Florida cabinet acting as a special parole board had granted Tongay the trip to obtain specialized treatment for his lung ailment in New Orleans. Arrested in Los Angeles on Nov. 21, Tongay claimed he had blacked out during the escape and his hitch-hike journey to the West Coast.

Faure Proposes Coalition Gov't To Save France

Urges Mendes-France To End Feud; Head Off Government Chaos

PARIS (AP)—Premier Edgar Faure called today for a broad truce between the feuding French parties of the center "to save the republic" from the Communists and the forces of anti-tax leader Pierre Poujade.

But he frankly admitted he had little hope himself of leading any new coalition as France's next premier, since his government now has only a caretaker status and will resign formally when the new National Assembly convenes Jan. 19.

Faure made his proposal after conferring with his lame duck cabinet to study the results of Monday's national elections which left France divided as never before and threatened its role in world affairs.

Poujade serves notice. In an effort to heal this rupture, Faure invited Mendes-France to end their feud and come into a coalition with other moderate parties to head off the threat of government chaos posed by the Communist and Poujadist gains.

Seriousness of the mounting crisis was emphasized by Poujade, the smalltown shopkeeper who rose overnight to political power. He served notice his 51 deputies would paralyze parliament if it did not do his bidding.

Poujade also has threatened to "hang" Poujadist deputies who do not obey him. Sources at his suburban chateau said the emblem of a gallows was being designed for party credentials as a reminder for each deputy. And each deputy was bound by oath to obey.

Victories by Poujade's group and by the Communists brought Faure and President Rene Coty face to face with the difficulties of finding a new premier who can end France's political upheaval.

La Rosa to Wed Brunette Secretary Of Perry Como

NEW YORK (AP)—Julius La Rosa, a baritone who shot to fame on swan song, announced today that his next big number would be a wedding march.

The 26-year-old Brooklyn-born singer, who was fired in Oct. 1953, by Arthur Godfrey for a lack of "humility," said he soon would wed Rosemary Meyer, a secretary in Perry Como's office.

Miss Meyer, 24, described as a striking brown-eyed brunette by her friends, hails from Manitowish, Wis. She has lived in New York for the last four years.

La Rosa proposed to Miss Meyer on New Year's Eve at the home of his parents in Mount Vernon, N. Y. According to a spokesman for La Rosa, the young singer offered Miss Meyer a ring while she was phoning her parents in Wisconsin.

La Rosa met Miss Meyer, described as a "near double to Ava Gardner," on a blind date last February.

Mysterious Cartridge Taken from Airliner Found Incendiary Device

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Army explosives experts said today a mysterious cartridge found in a Trans World Airlines plane carrying 32 passengers on a Chicago to Washington flight was "some type of incendiary device."

"The device, containing an inflammable powder, had a percussion cap on one end and a blow out plug on the other," Capt. Gilbert A. Sather of the 145th Ordnance Detachment said. "The powder burned with a brilliant flame."

The ordnance expert conducted tests on the cartridge-like object taken off the plane Tuesday at Ohio County Airport near Wheeling, W. Va., about 40 miles south of here. He said he planned further tests to determine if the object was a new type incendiary bomb.

He said the device could have been ignited by a sharp blow while

Former Communist Editor Admits He Was 'Chump' To Quit New York Times

WASHINGTON (AP)—James Glaser, former managing editor of the Communist Daily Worker, testified today he was a big "chump" and "lunkhead" when he quit the New York Times to join the Communist newspaper staff.

Glaser said he willingly took a $25-a-week pay cut to become managing editor of the Communist newspaper because he believed in socialism and at that time thought the Communist Party did, too.

He said he later found out that the Communist faith is "based on despotism, tyranny and totalitarianism," and quit both the party and Daily Worker managing editorship in August, 1936.

Glaser testified freely before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee about his connection with the Daily Worker. But he protested that he was being made a "public spectacle" because of a "dreadful mistake I made 21 years ago."

The subcommittee is investigating alleged instances of communism among newsmen.

Glaser, a small, white-haired man, said he joined the Daily Worker in July, 1934, after Communist leaders "intoxicated me with flattery."

"They made me feel I was somebody," he said. "Believe me I was. I was probably the biggest lunkhead they ever met."

Before the hearing began, Chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) said a newspaper is justified in firing an employee who invokes the Fifth Amendment when asked about Communist connections.

It would provide loans and grants to encourage new industries in areas of chronic unemployment, retrain workers with new skills, and permit extra unemployment and relief funds until new plants are operating.

Douglas said the subcommittee plans field hearings later in depressed areas in southern Illinois, New York, West Virginia, Maine, Kentucky, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

Sen. Harley M. Kilgore (D-W. Va.), one of the sponsors, said the problem "cries out for special and immediate attention."

Action must be taken, and taken promptly," he said. "Congress has the duty of enacting legislation to alleviate this ugly condition of continuing and extensive joblessness."

Kilgore said there is "no reason to anticipate further reductions in labor surplus areas without some type of federal aid." Furthermore, he said, "very often the creation of a depressed area is entirely outside the control of the local community, and is due to national or international factors."

The AFL had no specific recommendations, but its delegates said they would not be opposed to Stengel.

Germano said the CIO's top choice for the gubernatorial nomination is Cook County Treasurer Edward J. Barrett. Cook County Sheriff Joseph D. Lohman is the second choice, he said. Michael J. Howlett got the CIO nod for the secretary of state nomination.

Although the AFL and CIO have united on the national level, the state and local bodies have yet to be unified.

Soldier Receives 199-Year Sentence For Killing Girl

CHICAGO (AP)—Pvt. Henry Matthews, 18, Detroit, Mich., was sentenced to 199 years in prison Tuesday for the rape-murder of a 17-year-old girl after an Army dance.

The soldier received the life sentence after he changed his plea to guilty in the slaying of Joanne Pugh. Her body was found in a South Side park Aug. 6.

Matthews said he drank a number of cans of beer and a shot of whisky at the dance in his outfit's mess hall.

Matthews told police he went out with Miss Pugh, who had left the dance when her soldier escort became drunk.

He said he struck and strangled the girl after she resisted his advances.

Fairfield Driver Recommended Held for Grand Jury

OLNEY, Ill. (AP)—A Richland county coroner's jury recommended yesterday that James Toombs of Fairfield, driver of a car involved in an accident resulting in the death of M/Sgt. Charles Clay Austin on Monday afternoon, be held to a grand jury on a charge of reckless homicide.

Toombs, driving a car containing two other Fairfield youths, attempted to pass a car near here and collided with Austin's vehicle.

The condition of Mrs. Porter, who is still in the hospital at Mt. Vernon, is improved.

Will Include Payments to Cut Production

Eisenhower to Present Program in Message Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson announced today he will confer with President Eisenhower at Key West, Fla., to "firm up" the farm program Mr. Eisenhower will submit to Congress Monday.

Benson will fly to Key West Thursday or Friday.

Benson made the disclosure after giving House Republican leaders a preview of some of the proposals expected to be included in the special message to Congress.

Benson said "nothing will be firmed up" on the overall program "until I see the President tomorrow or the next day."

One congressman said after the breakfast meeting with Benson that the new program will call, among other things, for a double-barrelled "soil bank" plan for cash payment to farmers to slash production of major surplus crops.

The temporary White House at Key West, Fla., announced meanwhile that President Eisenhower will outline the new program in a special message to Congress Monday. Mr. Eisenhower has given the program top priority and will work on it between now and Monday.

Benson outlined the two-phase surplus reduction plan in the first of a series of breakfast meetings at which he hopes to sell congressmen on his ideas for dealing with the difficult farm problem in this election year.

GOP House leaders who attended the private session quoted Benson as saying that final details of the farm program have not yet been "firmed up." But Rep. Melvin R. Laird (R-Wis.) revealed that the key plan for reducing surpluses calls for:

1. An emergency program in which growers of corn, wheat, cotton, and rice—the four big surplus crops—would be paid to cut their already-allotted acreage voluntarily. They would be paid at current support prices, less estimated production costs, for the estimated crops they did not grow.

2. A long-range "soil bank" program in which about 350 million dollars would be paid in the first year to farmers who take acres out of corn, wheat, cotton, and rice production and use them for conservation crops such as grass.

Attending today's session were House GOP leaders, GOP members of the House Agriculture committee, and representatives of the Republican National committee. The latter underlined the election year importance of the farm issue. Senate leaders will attend a similar session with Benson Thursday.

The Democrats, meanwhile, have come up with their own soil bank plan which would call for 750 million dollars in government's payments to persuade farmers to take acreage out of surplus crop production.

Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) called his Democratic-controlled Senate Agriculture committee into closed session to start work on a three-point farm program, including the soil bank plan.

The senator's program also would provide for high ridge price supports, probably 90 per cent of parity, for high quality corn, cotton, peanuts, wheat and rice. Supports for inferior grades of the crops would remain flexible and be permitted to drop possibly as low as 50 per cent of parity.

The third part of Ellender's plan calls for disposal or "isolation" of present large farm surpluses.

Peron Carries Gun For Own Protection

MILAN, Italy (AP)—Deposed Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron carries a gun to protect himself against "paid assassins," a Milan magazine quoted him today.

Peron, in an interview in Panama with the correspondent of "Tempo," charged political opponents are planning to murder him. "I am not afraid," Peron said. "It is still to be seen who will be quicker on the trigger."

A photograph accompanying the interview showed Peron with a revolver in his belt.

Foreign Aid Crossroads

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

How much the new Congress will vote for defense and foreign aid will probably determine whether or not the federal budget can be balanced in the year starting next July. So there's bound to be some pretty sharp debate on these big items.

Foreign aid is perhaps especially vulnerable, since this country already has spent more than $50 billion in the past 10 years on foreign projects of all kinds. Many lawmakers, and the people they represent, are weary of shipping money and materials overseas.

These folk would argue that we have already spent too much abroad, that any more large appropriations will simply hike the national debt further and make budget-balancing and tax-cutting virtually impossible.

They make the added points that some foreign lands already regard this nation as "Uncle Sugar" and are too demanding, while others show utterly no gratitude for past favors.

If any aid is needed, which these critics doubt, they would have it take the form of private investment, except when a country's defense effort requires bolstering.

The proponents of continued foreign assistance contend this is the worst possible time to shut it off. Russia is engaged in the most ambitious economic warfare it has ever waged, particularly in the uncommitted but wavering countries of the Near East, Middle East and Southeast Asia.

If we were to let up now, the advocates say, we would run the risk of seeing the Soviet Union become the prime influence in these nations. All the economic problems these latter have are growing more, not less acute. The country that lends a big hand may do a lot to sell its system of government to the recipients.

It may also discover that the recipients, through gradually rising living standards, have become a better market for the goods of the befriending nation.

Right now the odds seem to favor those who want to trim foreign aid. Discontent over foreign outlays appears to be rising.

Possibly the only thing that would turn the tables the other way—aside from powerful intervention by President Eisenhower—would be an unmistakable Soviet success on the economic battlefield. For instance, if Burma or Afghanistan went Communist, we might decide that, despite its cost, a big aid program is our chief hope of preventing the rest of Asia and Africa from sliding into the same abyss.

Pay-Check Encouragement

There's a good deal of talk but not much action on the matter of teachers' generally deplorable salaries. Credit the Ford Foundation, therefore, for doing something solid about it for the second time this year.

Last spring the Foundation handed out $5 million dollars to the nation's colleges to help boost teachers' salaries. Now they have earmarked another 210 million dollars for the same purpose.

We are accustomed to having our great foundations allot funds to educational institutions. Welcome as this has always been, too infrequently has the grant been directed to the assistance of teachers.

The Ford group hopes in making this second successive grant for salaries that it is blazing a trail that will be followed not only by other private donors but by the legislature which must provide the monies for our huge and growing public institutions.

It is a hope that any reasonable

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Senate Democrats To Face Early Hassle Over Natural Gas And Civil Rights; Northern Senators Will Battle For Anti-Lynch Bill.

WASHINGTON. — Two significant backstage Senate huddles took place the week-end of Jan. 1, 1955, and the week-end of Jan. 1, 1956, with far-reaching effects on the Democratic party. The huddle on Jan. 1, 1955, brought unity to the Democrats. The huddle on Jan. 1, 1956, may split the Democratic party wide open.

At huddle No. 1 exactly one year ago, northern Senate Democrats decided to sidetrack any battle for the Negro and civil rights. The decision was made at the urging of eloquent, persuasive Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson, who argued that the Democrats, having won a united front, must show a united front.

Most northern Democrats agreed. Even Senator Hubert Humphrey, who had fought for civil rights at the Chicago Democratic convention, joined Johnson in urging that civil rights be sidetracked. So did Senator Paul Douglas, of Chicago, militant champion of the underdog.

Only Herbert Lehman, ex-governor of New York, persisted. During the private huddle of northern Democrats, he argued for civil rights until the end. When he finished, Douglas told him: "If you make the motion, I'll go along but I think it's better not to rock the boat."

At huddle No. 2, which actually is a series of continuing huddles held as senators returned to Washington after Christmas, the same Senator Douglas had different ideas.

In the first place, a boy from his city, Emmett Till, had been murdered in Mississippi, and Chicago's huge Negro population has been seething.

Second, Lyndon Johnson of Texas, who successfully poured oil on Democratic dissent one year ago, this year is pushing one of the most turbulent bills in the Senate. He is determined to ram the Harris-Fulbright bill to reverse the Supreme Court on the regulation of natural gas through the Senate immediately.

HIGHER PRICED GAS

This is a bill which puts every northern Democrat on the spot. Big cities like Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Milwaukee, St. Louis, which depend on southern gas for cooking-heating, will have to battle this bill and battle it hard. Not only will it hike the price of gas for northern consumers but it upsets the principle that the Supreme Court has a right to interpret the law.

It will, therefore, split the Democratic party wide open. It will cause almost as much friction as an anti-lynching bill or a fair employment practices bill.

The natural gas bill was all set to pass late last summer when Lyndon Johnson suffered his heart attack. In his absence, other Democrats threatened a filibuster; so acting leader Clements of Kentucky wisely sidetracked the gas bill.

Today, therefore, Lyndon wants to pass it in the first ten days of Congress before a filibuster could be effective.

This is where Senator Douglas comes in. He's holding a trump card which Lyndon Johnson obviously doesn't want him to play. But Douglas, who enlisted in the Marine Corps as a private at the age of 50 and was terribly wounded at Iwo Jima, is likely to play it.

His ace is a sort of anti-lynching amendment to the natural gas bill which makes it a federal offense to attack anyone on the basis of race, creed or color.

This would have removed the Till case from a Mississippi grand jury and placed it before the Justice Department in Washington. It would also cover any race riot, kidnapping or rape case.

Whether Douglas tacks this onto the natural gas bill will depend largely on the suave, astute senator from Texas. It's assumed that Johnson, who always bows reverently toward the Texas oil and gas fields, will not sidetrack the gas bill, but will try to talk his way out of the Douglas threat. And he is one of the smoothest talkers ever to operate in the Senate. He seems able to talk a bird out of a tree or Hubert Humphrey out of his civil rights convictions.

Maybe he can talk his way out of this one. It will be interesting to see.

Prayers Unanswered, Admits Church Fire

MINNEAPOLIS. — Police said today that Robert W. Meyer, 39, admitted setting fire to a 106-year-old church because his prayers had not been answered.

The fire at St. Anthony of Padua Church occurred last Oct. 11 and caused $30,000 damage. An arson squad official said Meyer would probably be committed to a mental hospital for treatment.

New Westinghouse Strike Violence Flares; Picket Struck by Worker's Car

MANSFIELD, Ohio. — New Westinghouse strike violence flared briefly here today as some 300 strikers pushed, punched and stoned returning workers. One picket was struck and injured by a worker's car.

The melee occurred as some 830 first shift employees pushed their way into the Westinghouse plant here past a jeering crowd of 1,000 pickets. Once inside many said they had been hit by fists and stoned as they ran the striker's gauntlet.

One parked car was overturned. David C. Nelson, 33, Belleville, a picket, was treated at General hospital for leg injuries, suffered when he was struck by a station wagon driven by Chalmers Snyder.

Snyder, 47, said he was trying to drive into the company parking lot when his car window was smashed. He said he saw a "mob" approaching, and drove frantically through a knot of men blocking his path.

The outbreak here dimmed the hope of Chief Federal Mediator Joseph Finnegan that a shift in negotiations to Philadelphia from Pittsburgh would have a favorable effect on the 80-day strike. A verbal battle ended negotiations in Pittsburgh Tuesday.

The Columbus scene, marked by the death of a striker, injury of 8 others and arrest of 89, was quiet today.

Fewer than the six pickets per gate allowed by the judge were on duty, and a "normal" complement of sheriff's deputies was on the scene.

First shift workers returned to their jobs through the picket lines without incident.

Ohio Gov. Frank J. Lausche had said the state would step into the dispute "if necessary" to maintain law and order.

At the peak of the fighting 2,000 pickets battled non-striking workers before dawn. Automobiles were overturned, windshields and headlights smashed and lights set up by the company were broken.

More than 100 police and sheriff's deputies brought order to the strike scene after about two hours. Eight persons injured in the outbreak were treated at hospitals and released.

Union Attorney David Clayman charged that Troy Tadlock, 34, a Grove City picket, had been "killed" by law enforcement authorities "during the outbreak. But the coroner ruled that his death was caused by coronary thrombosis."

New Storm Threatens More California Floods

By United Press

A gale-driven storm threatened new floods in California and triggered damaging mud slides in Oregon today.

Elsewhere, a sub-zero cold wave knifed into the Midwest and a New York City ferry boat was lost for five hours in dense fog.

The western storm, packing warm rains and gale-force winds, prompted Army engineers to issue crest warnings for all rivers in the California area ravaged by Christmas week floods.

In Oregon, the main danger appeared to be mud slides which damaged homes and highways throughout the western part of the state. A single slide at Portland washed a clump of eight maple trees down a city park hillside.

In the northern Midlands, a new blast of cold air pushed the temperature to 6 below zero at the Minnesota cities of Bemidji and International Falls.

Cold weather drove as far south as northern Indiana and Illinois and spread snow across parts of Michigan.

Snow also continued in New York state and New England, with one inch of new snow reported in central and eastern New York.

Congress Bills Propose Gov't Aid in Floods

WASHINGTON. — Congress today had a hopper full of bills proposing government help in easing flood disasters.

The bills were among 150 introduced on the opening of the new session of Congress Tuesday. They came in the wake of devastating floods in California and the Northeast.

The proposed legislation ranged from giving the Army Engineers added discretion in building emergency flood control projects to setting up a special federal corporation to issue flood damage insurance.

House members also introduced a stack of bills and constitutional amendments dealing with the possible death or serious illness of a United States president. The proposals were prompted by President Eisenhower's heart attack Sept. 24.

All bills were introduced in the House. Traditionally, senators do not introduce any bills until after the President submits his State of the Union message.

President Eisenhower will send his State of the Union message to Congress Thursday.

Illinois Polio Cases in '55 Lower Than 1954

SPRINGFIELD. — Illinois had 1,394 cases of polio in 1955, only about half the 1954 total of 2,212, the State Health Department reported today.

The 1955 cases included 639 paralytic cases, 716 non-paralytic and 39 unspecified.

Dr. Ruth Church, head of the department's division of communicable disease control, said there did "appear to be some evidence" that Salk polio vaccine reduced the polio rate among vaccinated children.

However, she said, it "wouldn't be fair" to compare the 1954 and 1955 polio rates in discussing the Salk vaccine. She said the vaccine was given to only a few children in one age group and that Illinois did not have a high incidence of polio this year compared to other areas in the nation.

McCarthy Ready To Help Senate GOP Candidates

WASHINGTON — Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), who sat out the 1954 election, said today he will campaign this year for any hard-pressed Republican Senate candidate who asks his help.

McCarthy, whose term runs until 1958, told newsmen that he will "take part . . . in any state where there is a close contest and the Republican senator wants me to come in."

So far, he said, he has requests from candidates or their backers in "at least eight states." But he would not specify the candidates. The Wisconsin Republican said he has no requests from the GOP National Committee or the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, though the Senate group has relayed some individual requests to him.

McCarthy took no part in the last election beyond expressing his distaste for Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.), who was then a candidate and had made statements against McCarthy.

This year, McCarthy said, he will stress his communists - in-government theme in opposing Democratic candidates. But he indicated that if he campaigns on the record of the Eisenhower administration, he will do so because he considers it "much better than the previous Democratic administration — if that could be called campaigning on the record."

AF Secretary Says
Communists Cannot Conquer Formosa

HONG KONG (AP) — U. S. Air Force Secretary Donald Quarles said today that the Chinese Communists could not conquer Formosa and expressed doubt they would even try.

Quarles, who is making an inspection tour of U. S. Air Force installations in the Pacific and Far East, told reporters that "I cannot imagine the Reds being so unwise as to try and take Formosa."

He also said he did not expect global war this year although the possibility should not be ignored.

47 Student Patrolmen To Begin Training at State Police Academy

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Forty-seven student patrolmen will begin training at the State Highway Police Academy here Monday, according to Superintendent Phil M. Brown.

Lt. Francis E. Pipar, director of training, said that the school will continue for three weeks. Date of graduation will be announced later. Candidates invited to attend the Academy include: George William Adams, Shawneetown; Clay Dean Boyer, West Frankfort; Carl Reuben Gardner Jr., Marion; John Harvey Ingram, Buckner, and John Oldani Jr., Herrin.

In terms of density black ironwood is the hardest North American wood. Found in Florida, it has a specific gravity of 1.04 and is so heavy it sinks in water.

Major Issues Facing Second Session Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Major issues facing the second session of the 84th Congress:

Taxes: Many lawmakers want to vote for an election-year cut in income taxes. But the outcome is in doubt because of prospects for higher federal spending, and, in any event, nothing will be done immediately. Democratic leaders will wait for President Eisenhower's tax recommendations to be made in the spring before mapping strategy.

Farm: Democrats will seek Senate passage of a House-approved bill junking the administration's flexible program and restoring rigid high price supports. But they concede they could not override a probable presidential veto. The administration will propose new "soil bank" subsidy with prospects good for enactment in some form.

Schools: Congress is expected to enact a new program of federal spending to help local communities build schools. Administration will recommend it. House Education and Labor Committee already has approved its own plan. But legislation could be killed by fight over aid to school districts practicing segregation.

Highways: Approval of expanded road-building program is almost certain. The issue is how to pay for it. Administration will seek compromise between (1) its previously proposed, but rejected, bond-financing plan and (2) higher taxes on gasoline and tires favored by Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.).

Foreign Policy: Sharp increase in foreign aid funds sought by administration already has run into strong opposition. Congress is almost certain to scale down the requested $4,900,000,000. Democrats will be gunning at the Eisenhower administration also on alleged failure of the summit conference and the resumption of the cold war.

Natural Gas: There will be a party-splitting sectional fight in the Senate over House-passed bill to exempt natural gas from federal control. Passage is probable. But senators from consuming areas say they have a chance of defeating it.

Social Security: The House in the last session approved a bill to lower benefit age for women and disabled workers and to raise employee-employer payroll taxes to pay for it. Administration is reported planning to ask Senate for less liberal plan without tax boosts.

Illinois Leaders Plan Merger of AFL-CIO Groups

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois leaders of the AFL and CIO state organizations said Tuesday the two units may merge into a single state labor union before the end of the year.

Reuben G. Soderstrom, Illinois State Federation of Labor president, and Joseph Germano, president of the CIO Industrial Union Council, said the merger may take place at a joint convention of the two organizations.

Soderstrom stressed the advantage to labor of having a single union in Illinois before the next session of the state Legislature convenes in 1957.

The ISFL represents the bulk of organized workers in Illinois with its membership of 900,000. The CIO state council would add 350,000 members to the consolidated union for a total membership of 1,250,000 workers.

State and county groups within the CIO and the AFL have two years to work out merger plans under terms of the national merger agreement reached last

It Will Take Unusual Tactics To Stop SF, Old Cagers Claim

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK—(NEA)—Bill Russell and the San Francisco Dons provoked one of the best basketball arguments in some time with the overpowering show they put on for Chicago and New York basketball fans during the holiday tournaments.

The argument was not about how good Russell is. The point was how the job of beating the Dons could be approached.

San Francisco, you see, stifles the opposition with a tremendous five-man defensive setup. K. C. Jones, Harold Perry, Bill Mallen and company constantly picked up the ball-handler at midcourt. From there on, it was a scramble to control the ball against the Dons. Two defenders always seemed to get on the man with the ball, completely disrupting any smooth play-making in the backcourt.

On the surface, it seemed the Dons, as a unit, comprised the finest defensive college team to show in many years.

Jones acknowledged this, but offered an explanation. "It isn't us so much—it's Russell," he said. "You see, we can afford to gamble—leave one man to chase another—because we know Russell is back there and he can pick up anybody who gets in free."

"That gives us an edge. We can really do a gang-up job on the man with the ball outside. And we know we've got a backstop if anything goes wrong."

"I don't see how a college team can beat them," Ducey Moore of Duquesne said. "Defensively they ruin you. Russell is too much for anybody around. It would take some screwy offense to handle them."

The screwy offense business brought the most response. Old-timers recalled how teams of the past coped with overpowering situations.

The first of the modern big men, Mike Novak of Chicago Loyola, a 6-9 giant of the mid-30's, was stopped by a stunt pulled by Clair Bee of Long Island University. Novak was operating when goal-tending was legal and even a high set shot was hard-pressed to get past him. Bee had Danny Kaplowitz spend a week in the old Brooklyn Pharmacy Gymnasium practicing banked set shots from the side.

"Danny," recalls teammate Dolly King, "must have taken 100 shots a day from one part of the court. He'd send the ball against the very edge of the backboard. It had a ton of English on it. It would hit—then run right down the board into the hoop. It was impossible to block."

Kaplowitz, with this queer shot, had a hot night and LIU ruined Novak and Loyola.

You have Doc Carlson's way of handling Penn State's zone, some five years ago. The Pittsburgh coach, disdainful of the zone Penn State used in its crackerbox gym, ordered his club to advance to mid-court, then simply hold the ball.

"It was 3-2 at the half," Haskell Cohen of the National Basketball Association recalls.

Tommy Tolan, the old Brooklyn St. John's captain, thought about his team's 1948 victory over a far superior City College of New York club.

"We had no chance against their speed, so Dick McGuire and I put on a 40-minute freeze at mid-court," Tolan recalls. "We shot only when the referee called a foul or we had an open hanger. Otherwise, Dick and I kept it outside and gave it to nobody. It was boring to watch and nobody scored much, but we won by three points."

Rhode Island State's style—that's what I'd use," Johnny Bach, the Fordham coach, said. "They had no height, so when they came into New York for the first time in 1941, they left a man hanging in each corner. They'd get the ball, throw it like a football down-court—and then everybody would start running and shooting."

"That introduced high scoring in the modern game."

Knicks Beat Celtics, 107-97

By United Press
The Philadelphia Warriors opened a game-and-a-half lead in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Assn. today with the aid of the streak-busting New York Knickerbockers.

The Knicks beat the Boston Celtics, 107-97, in the first half of a doubleheader at Philadelphia Tuesday night to snap the second-place Celtics' winning streak at seven games. The Warriors quickly took advantage of the Celtics' slip by beating Fort Wayne, 102-82, in the second game.

The Knicks held a four-point lead at the start of the final period, doubled it quickly on baskets by Gene Shue and Walt Dukes and stayed comfortably ahead the rest of the way. Harry Gallatin led New York with 23 points and Ray Felix had 20. Ernie Vandeweghe, coming out of retirement, played briefly for New York.

Philadelphia led Fort Wayne, 43-34, at halftime and then blew the game apart by setting a court record with 37 points in the third period. Tom Gola's 20 points paced the Warriors, but George Yardley had 22 for the Pistons.

The Equality high school basketball team surprised Crab Orchard Tuesday night by taking a 73-34 decision. The game was played at Equality.

The teams were considered well matched—Crab Orchard having taken an early season game 66-62—and Equality was given a good chance to win on its own floor, but not by a 39-point spread.

Staging a full-court press from the beginning, Equality took command of the game at the opening horn and never lost control. Terry Glover with 15 points paced Equality's scoring. Merrel with 12 was high for Crab Orchard.

Equality also took the preliminary game 50-49. The young Equality boys now have won four in a row after losing the first six at the start of the season.

Oklahoma Backfield Coach Named Grid Mentor at Nebraska

MIAMI — Pete Elliott, Oklahoma backfield coach, will succeed Bill Glassford as head football coach at the University of Nebraska today.

Announcement of Elliott's appointment to the $12,000 a year post was made by Nebraska Athletic Director Bill Orwig, who said he would ask the university board of regents to approve a three-year contract for Elliott.

Elliott, who at 29 becomes one of the youngest head coaches in college football circles, said "I know that with the united help of all Nebraskans we can develop teams of recognized Nebraska caliber."

Elliott, graduated in 1948 from Michigan where he played quarterback. He was end coach at Oregon State before moving to Oklahoma. He expressed regret at leaving Oklahoma and called his association with Sooner Head Coach Bud Wilkinson "five of the most pleasant years of my life."

Glassford resigned as Nebraska head coach following the 1955 season.

Durocher Robbed By Lone Gunman

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Leo (The Lip) Durocher admits the difference between robbery on the baseball diamond and in front of his own home.

Durocher was robbed of $20 by a lone gunman who waited near the garage until the ex-Giant manager's return home Monday night.

"I was too scared to talk," Durocher said. "I gave him $20, all I had on me. If I had had $1,500, I'd have given him that, too."

Durocher, now an NBC executive, lives in Beverly Hills. His actress wife Laraine Day was asleep at the time of the robbery.

High School Player To Be No. One Draft Choice of Pro Hawks

ST. LOUIS — The St. Louis Hawks, seeking long-range help, today announced their intention of selecting Jack Pirrie, Maplewood, Mo., high school basketball star, as their first draft choice for the 1956 season.

Ben Kerner, president of the Hawks, said that Pirrie would be selected under the National Basketball Association rule which allows a club to "draft" a high school player, within that club's territorial limits, in the player's last year of high school.

By drafting him at this time the Hawks will have established a claim on Pirrie regardless of where he attends college.

Shawneetown Runs Its Unbeaten String to 13

By United Press
Shawneetown resumed post-holiday Illinois high school basketball Tuesday night by running its unbeaten string to 13.

The Indians toyed with Crossville 76-52, and the schedule shows the Tribe, paced by veterans Jack Nolen and Al Gunzel, won't face a stern test until the Jan. 16 Great Egyptian tournament.

Lincoln, trailing by two points at the half, tampered with Mount Pulaski outfit getting 19 points for the winners. It was the ninth win against two losses for the Rail splitters. Lincoln had trouble coping with a first-half full court press.

Streator, still regarded as a Big 12 conference power, nipped Ottawa 48-42. The Bulldogs now have an 8-2 season mark.

Danvers racked up the high score for the night, blasting Wapella 104-44. Close behind in the lopsided victory department was Peoria Limestone's 91-38 trouncing of Rushville. Limestone, with a 7-2 record, has a showdown battle coming up with the all-winning Washington Panthers Saturday.

Peoria Spalding, 8-1, downed East Peoria 68-60. Odell St. Paul, another "Little David" to watch, whipped Wilmington 50-44.

Cumberland, unbeaten until the East St. Louis holiday tournament, climbed back on the victory trail in a crucial Eastern Illinois conference game, nailing out Charleston 61-60. Charleston has lost only twice in 11 outings.

Lawrenceville - Robinson and Champaign - Urbana resumed old rivalries. Lawrenceville grabbed a thriller from Robinson 67-66. Champaign breezed to a 64-51 victory against Urbana.

East St. Louis Assumption fell before St. Louis University High 72-58 in an interstate battle. Springfield Feitshans jolted Pana 64-62.

Pope County Wins 63-58 Tilt At Metropolis

Pope County of the Greater Egyptian conference went outside the league Tuesday night, traveling to Metropolis, and taking a 63-58 decision.

The winning Pope County team presented a well-balanced scoring game, eight players breaking into the point production with King's 13 being high. Taylor of Metropolis was tops for the game with 22 for action within the next few days, but may not play against Vienna Friday night.

Another Indian also is ailing and isn't expected to be ready this Friday. Coleman, after playing a few minutes last night complained of not feeling well and was taken from the game. Examination showed he had the flu.

Shawneetown's rebounding strength was the big difference last night, with the winners controlling both boards throughout the game.

Shawneetown took the preliminary game, 61-56.

Greater Egyptian Coaches, Principals To Meet Tonight

Principals and coaches of the Greater Egyptian conference will meet at the Pope County high school in Golconda this evening with two chief items of business to be discussed.

Drawings will be made for the annual conference tournament and filling a vacancy in the league will be considered.

The annual basketball tournament will be held Jan. 17-20 at Ridgway.

It has been announced that Vienna is withdrawing from the league and members of the conference will consider filling the vacancy.

Vienna, a member of the loop for years, feels it can make a better basketball schedule by staying closer to home and getting more games to the south than by making the longer trip north.

At present the loop is composed of the following eight high schools: Golconda, Shawneetown, Ridgway, Equality, Cave-in-Rock, Rosiclare, Pope County and Vienna.

Schaefer Signs Eagles Contract

PHILADELPHIA — Notre Dame fullback Don Schaefer, has signed a National Football league contract with the Philadelphia Eagles. Schaefer, the Eagles' number three draft choice in the early draft last month, signed after returning to the N. D. campus from the East-West game in San Francisco.

Shawneetown Still Unbeaten After 76-52 Win

Shawneetown travelled to Crossville Tuesday night and grabbed a 76-52 decision, marking the 13th win of the year against no defeats for the Gallatin county crew.

Alfred Gunzel, Shawneetown forward, fell hard early in the game and it was feared he might have suffered a bad injury. However, reports today are that Gunzel was only bruised and should be ready for action within the next few days, but may not play against Vienna Friday night.

Another Indian also is ailing and isn't expected to be ready this Friday. Coleman, after playing a few minutes last night complained of not feeling well and was taken from the game. Examination showed he had the flu.

Gov't Penalizes Farmer $588 for Wheat Acreage

PEORIA, Ill. (U.P.)—Leo D. Quigley, 48, a Lewistown farmer, who doesn't see eye-to-eye with the government about what he must grow, has until Jan. 18 to explain why he shouldn't pay $588 for growing more wheat than his quota. The government has asked the Federal District Court to penalize Quigley $588 for planting 21 acres of wheat in 1954 when he should have planted 15 acres. The government says Quigley must pay $1.12 penalty on each of the 525 bushels he harvested. The wheat acreage allotment program was approved in 1954 and 1955 in nationwide farm referendums and county agriculture committees assigned acreages to farmers. Quigley, who said he doesn't think the government should be able to impose acreage restrictions, now says he would have settled for the 15 acres he could have been allotted under the program.

THE STORY: After recovering from injuries received from an attacking whale, Capt. Jered Naish finds his ship far south of the settlements where fresh stores could be obtained. His men are suffering from scurvy.

XVIII
"Tell me," Captain Naish said to Mr. Bothwick, "in what fashion did Blageen hang?"
"With Alfie's belt around his neck," Mr. Bothwick said slowly. "Or so it was my belief when I cut the body down. But the belt disappeared. Alfie, I might point out, moves with his usual spryness. A most unusual, confounded youngster."

Naish's decision that night was to make the Cape Horn passage. Nothing could be lost by the attempt. The entire ship's company would perish if the present course was continued. If, by something close to a miracle, he could stretch canvas to this wind he might succeed in running the strait and reaching the Pacific.

He sent Beedle for Alfie before midnight. The boy came on deck in clothing Naish was sure had been among Blageen's gear. His face in the starlight pallor was like a gnome's, pinched and compressed, with lines of undue maturity about the mouth. "We're for the cape, sir?" he said.

"Yes," Naish said solemnly. "Tonight, you get to be a sailor. You're going aloft to loosen canvas."

Naish expected Alfie to run below, or to protest with shrill, sly talk. "Not too good a plice up there for a nipper like me," he said. "But I'll 'elp you or I can, sir."

"First we'll need some snatch blocks rigged," Naish said, as if he talked to Mr. Wilson or Mr.

Finnie.
"I know," Alfie said. "Ter lead the sheets and the bryces to the windlass. I'll fetch 'em, sir, and rig 'em. The fo'c'sle lot, some of them ain't so sick they can't bend on at the pawls and 'aul in fer us." "We'll see," Naish said. He was no longer surprised by Alfie. The boy approached the supernatural and was incalculable. "Be sure to rig your blocks securely," Alfie left.

Beedle shook the spray drench from his head. He was shivering with cold, and his voice was a muted croak. "Don't you trust the lad, Cap'n," he said. "Some of the fo'c'sle gang mebbe will rouse out instead."

"Not yet," Naish said. "But your task is to steer. When I give you the order, set her square away." "Square away she'll be, sir," Beedle muttered.

Naish went forward in the ship with his good hand clasped around the six-inch hauser that served as lifeline and was streamed from mast to mast. He was battered so hard by the water that he breathed only with fitful, choking gasps. His body which had ached in every part had become numb. He barely felt the hawser although he tightly gripped the strands. His spirit, his instinct guided him, and sometimes he was not fully aware of just what his body did.

Alfie had found the snatch blocks and had properly secured them along the deck. He stood hanging to the pin rail at the foremast foot, his black hair sleek and smooth down his brow, his eyes weirdly ashine. Now he gazed aloft and he beat his hands against his chest for warmth. "Fore tops'l, sir?" he said.

"Aye," Naish said. "Let it go all together gaskets and points. Then hold on or she'll shake you off up there."

Naish strained to watch his ascent. The boy's shirt had been blown from his pantaloons. It flapped flat against his body, a miniature sail, Naish told himself morosely, and yet Alfie was on the yard, out along it and he was casting off gaskets and reef points as he went.

Naish felt a queer commingling of shame for himself as a man and pride in Alfie. Time you matched the boy's action, he thought.

He cast off the topsail brace from the pin rail, and began to lead it to a block.

The shock to the ship with the spill of the canvas had brought the men on deck. The veterans were first, their sailor pride aroused. He heard Larned and he heard Tatem and Titcomb and Kitchen and Oliphant, then Morrow, a number of others. "Who's aloft?" That was Larned. "The lad," Naish said, "Alfie."

"By the Gorry!" "Haul away for'd," Naish said. "Lead to the windlass, you swags, and brace her around. We're bound for the cape."

"Yes, sir, Cap'n." That was Oliphant, and he was in Oliphant's arms. "But you're bound aft."

He awoke late in the next day to a somber sky and a tumultuous sea. But the ship carried all her plain canvas and she was working well to the westward. He got up from the chair and went to the leeward side and relieved himself with a great sensation of happiness. When he returned towards the chair, Mr. Wilson handed him the long-glass and said quietly, "There's the strait."

Naish leaned against the chair for support. He swept the long-glass along the dun shadows. There it was, Tierra del Fuego where the Indians burned their dim fires in the rain, then Etaten Land, beyond the Magellan. He closed the long-glass. His eyes went curiously over Mr. Wilson. "Can you take her through?"

"Yes, sir," Mr. Wilson said. But Naish waited for an instant more. "Without Alfie?" "Yes, sir," Veins distended in Mr. Wilson's throat above his sweater collar. "I reckon I ain't as sick as I thought." (To Be Continued)
